DETAILED ACTION

Claim 1 drawn to a dispersant-viscosity improver composition is generic to a plurality of disclosed patentably distinct species comprising the various components "a" and "b". It is proposed that the applicant be required to elect an examinable species for (i) the hydrocarbon of component "a" from the species described in claims 3-16; (ii) the acid derivative of "a" from the species described in claim 18; (iii) the hydroxy-containing material, "b-i", of "b-1" from the species described in claim 24; (iv) the amine, "b-ii", of "b-1" from the species described in claim 26 or, alternatively, (v) the acylated derivative of "b-1", i.e. "b-2", along with an election of which species of "b-1" is being elected; (vi) should "b-2" be elected instead of "b-1" then the acylating agent as described in claim 31 or claim 34. In addition to the above election of species, based on the fact that claim 38, drawn to an additive concentrate, is generic to a variety of species embodying a pour point depressant it is proposed that the applicant be required to elect an examinable species for the pour point depressant as described in claim 38. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species, even though this requirement is traversed.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
